HILL DROPS CLOSE TILT TO AGGIES

Invaders Tie Buff and Blue Lead With Redmond Off Ice

THIRD FRAME ENDS 3-2

Hamiltonians Unable To Score In Final Period Of Play

Taking advantage of an injury which kept Hamilton's star goalie off the ice for part of the first period, the Massachusetts Aggies hockey team slipped two counters past Eames, inexperienced sophomore substitute, to come from behind and pave the way for a 3-2 victory, in last Saturday's tilt.

The Buff and Blue got off to an early lead with two counters in the first period. After Redmond had been removed from the game, the Aggies scored twice on Eames to knot the count at 2-2 as the period ended.

Neither team was able to tally again until the third stanza, when, soon after the opening whistle, Davis slipped the puck past Redmond for the deciding point.

Corwin Begins Scoring

Corwin tallied Hamilton's first goal in four minutes of the opening period from in front of the cage, following up a shot by Vibberts and scoring before the visitors' goalie could get the puck away from the net. Lester accounted for the Buff and Blue's second marker in a similar manner after Smith's try for a score.

Soon afterward Redmond, who played so brilliantly against Michigan the week before, was injured and removed from the game. Scrimmage in front of the net ended in a spill in which the Buff and Blue cage star received a cut on the side of the head. His place was filled by Eames, a sophomore playing his first game of intercollegiate hockey.

Mass. Aggies Tally

The visitors renewed the attack and Eames made a pretty stop on their first attempt to score. But his inexperience soon showed itself when

DALE COMPLETES GEOLOGY PAPER

Oswegatchie Quadrangle Is Subject Of N. Y. State Survey

Professor Nelson C. Dale has just completed a monograph on the geology of the Oswegatchie, N. Y., quadrangle for the New York State Geological Survey. The purpose of the study of this region was to learn something about the structure of the various rock formations in an east-west section through the Adirondack province.

There are three or four important iron ore deposits and many interesting rock formations in the 218 square miles of the Oswegatchie district, according to Dr. Dale. He had to traverse the region on foot, mapping in the various outcrops and formations which he found. Most of his field trips were undertaken alone, but he was accompanied a few of the times by Hamilton men who intend to become geologists.

The manuscript of Professor Dale's researches covers some 135 pages, and contains 19 plates and seven figures. His illustrated lecture on the Benson mines, delivered before the American Geologic Society at Washington during the last Christmas recess, was based upon his findings in the Oswegatchie district.

Younghusband, Britain's Most Noted Living Explorer, To Give Myers Lecture February 5

On Wednesday night, February 5, one of the most famous Myers lecturers that has ever appeared on the Hill will deliver an address on his explorations in the remote and little-known regions of Asia. "My Mission To Thibet" will be the subject treated by Sir Francis E. Younghusband, the most noted British explorer of the present day.

Sir Francis is coming to this country to attend the inauguration of the Canadian Geographical Society, according to word just received by Professor A. P. Saunders. As far as it is known, the explorer's lecture on the Hill will be his only public appearance in the United States. He will stop here on his way back to England, after two weeks in Canada.

The armed expedition of Sir Francis to Thibet in 1904, when explorations were not the larks of young men in search of romance, was undertaken on behalf of the British government, as a result of threatened possession of that region by Russia. His mission to Lhasa, which was a decided success, in spite of the hostility of the mountain tribes, resulted in an extension of the Indian system of triangulation, which finally determined the geographical position of that city, and paved the way for later reconnaissances of the valleys of the Upper Brahmaputra and Indus. This trip will be the subject of the explorer's lecture.

Sir Francis is an author as well as a famous explorer. He has written "The Heart of a Continent," the story of his wanderings to the north of Kashmir; "A Journey to Manchuria," an account of his adventures in that little-known and then totally unexplored part of the world; "The Story of Everest," and a book on the mystic aspects of the religions he has encountered in the far-away regions of the earth.

LAVES DEFENDS LOBBY SYSTEM

Geographic Representation Is Inadequate To Meet Present Needs

"The problem of the lobby is not one of abolishing or even condemning it, but rather of making it into a recognized and controlled unit in our democratic system of government," declares Professor Walter H. C. Laves in a brief article appearing in the correspondence section of the December 18 issue of "The New Republic," entitled "The Need for the Lobbyist."

In commenting upon the recent investigation conducted by Senator Caraway for the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, Dr. Laves says, "The real significance of the investigation appears to lie in showing that the system of representation provided by our constitution is inadequate, and that our failure to recognize this sooner has resulted in the formation of a new, informal, and extra-legal system."

Today there is a demand for group as well as geographic representation. "There is enough to be said for the geographic system of representation to retain it as a part of our structure of political organization. But the functional basis is equally of such importance that it must be retained in one way or another. The lobby is a form which it takes today."

LAW IS OPERATED ON FOR APPENDICITIS

Will Try Examinations In Hospital And Return Next Semester

Theodore G. Law, '30, was operated on for appendicitis last Thursday evening, January 9, at Faxton Hospital. During the afternoon of the ninth, Law had felt pain in his right side, and early in the evening was advised by Dr. Alonzo Frost of Clinton to see a specialist at the hospital in Utica.

The operation was performed that same night, although it was afterwards learned that an immediate operation was not necessary, but advisable. Law's father came on from Briarcliffe Manor the next morning, and hs fiancee arrived Saturday from New York. He will not return to the Hill until next term, but he expects to take his semester examinations at the hospital.

Second Issue Will Contain Poetry Translations By Board Members

The Hamilton Literary Magazine's second issue this year will appear at the beginning of next semester. All contributions must be in the hands of Editor Ives by January 29. Considerable material, including short stories, essays, and poetry, has already been submitted.

Among the manuscripts on hand are "Concrete," a short story, and "Hazlitt: A Prose Byron," a critical essay, both by Robert W. Cruser, '31; a short story by Louis C. Jones, '30; an essay by Vernon A. Ives, '30, on "Modern War Novels;" a play by Theodore G. Law, '30; and an essay by William Sloane, '32.

A number of translations of poetry have been received, from the Greek, French, Spanish and German by various members of the board, in addition to original verse by Louis C. Jones, '30.

NEW SYSTEM IS WORKING WELL

Faculty-Student Plan Reveals Healthy Development As Weeks Pass

A survey of the recently adopted Student-Faculty Plan for Social Advisorship shows that the experimental period is being passed with success.

Fraternities have taken over the operation of the system almost automatically. The movement, when once conceived and instituted by the joint action of Pentagon and the Interfraternity Council, has seemed to develop naturally, without any apparent pressure.

At present a brief period of suspension of social relations between faculty members and students is necessitated because of the approaching semester examinations. Several of the faculty have expressed their opinion that they ought not to take any of the students' time during these weeks for purposes other than academic. With the beginning of the new term an abundance of time and opportunity will be available for social co-operation between the two elements of the college community.

Most of the houses have adopted the policy of open house at all times for their advisers, expecting them to accept the hospitality of the house whenever convenient.

400 ALUMNI WILL GATHER IN NEW YORK

Gotham Association Ready For Annual Banquet In Union League Club

LITTLETON IS SPEAKER

Group Will Likewise Hear Dr. Ferry and Professor Fancher

New York, Jan. 14 — More than 400 members of the New York Alumni Association will gather Friday for a banquet and annual meeting in the Union League Club, 39th Street, Friday.

The group will be addressed this year by Martin W. Littleton, a New York lawyer; by Frederick C. Ferry, president of Hamilton, and by Paul Adee Fancher, director of the choir.

The meeting has been arranged for by Lloyd P. Stryker, '06, president, and Charles H. Seaver, '21, secretary. It is open to all members of the New York Association, and in effect, all Hamilton men in the vicinity of New York City.

While Mr. Littleton's address is as yet unannounced, Dr. Ferry will speak informally on current activities at the college and Paul A. Fancher will discuss the choir and its engagements during the coming season.

In many ways the meeting will be similar to the 1929 gathering, at which Alexander Woolcott, '09, was the speaker. The two college American flags have been sent to New York and they will occupy an appropriate place on the platform.

K. P. OPEN TO EVERY SENIOR

Rules Of Clark Prize Oration Extended To Conform With New System

"All seniors are eligible to compete for the Clark Prize this year," said Professor Calvin Leslie Lewis, head of the Department of Rhetoric and Oratory, when asked by a Life reporter if the old requirement for K. P. ,that of receiving a mark of credit or better in Senior Oration was still in force.

This change permits seniors who are taking Extemporaneous Speaking in place of Senior Oration to compete. The former custom of allowing a senior to substitute K. P. for his second senior oration has also been abolished.

Action Expected

This action has been expected in connection with the change in Public Speaking requirements which went into effect at the beginning of the semester. Seniors now have the privilege of electing two courses out of the three offered, Senior Oration, Senior Debate and Extemporaneous Speaking.

The 1930 topics for K. P. are: "The Leaven of Science," "The United States Supreme Court," "Napolean at St. Helena," "The Hellenic Race in America," "The Millionaire and the Law," "America as International Arbiter," "Russian Nationalism," "Germany's Debt To Her Adopted Races," "International Citizenship," "The Declaration of War Vested in the People," "Witchcraft," "Marshal Foch," "Democracy, English and American," "Sarah Bernhard," "The Mexican Immigrant in the United States," "The Increasing Power of the Spoken Word," "Culture in America," "International Finance and Peace."

Correspondents In Principal Cities Of State Will Report Alumni News For Life

Plans were approved by the editorial board of Hamilton Life Saturday, calling for the establishment of correspondents in the chief cities of the state for the purpose of reporting alumni news for the college paper.

Already three correspondents have been designated in Buffalo, Rochester, and New York, and it is intended to secure representatives in Binghamton, Syracuse and Albany. George H. Bebee, '26, secretary of the Buffalo Alumni Association; J. Howard Davies, '23, secretary of the Rochester Alumni Association and Thomas L. McCready, Jr., '29, of New York City, are the correspondents of their respective cities.

Hamilton has never had an alumni publication as is the case in certain of the colleges and universities of the country. Consequently there has been no medium for handling alumni activities. The Life board hopes to remedy this deficiency by opening the pages of the weekly paper to stories of events in the alumni world, and thus keep the graduates informed as to the activity of their classmates.

It is hoped that representatives can be secured in all the principal cities of the state to perform this service of sending in clippings and stories of the part which Hamilton men have been playing in the affairs of the world. It is believed that Life will be one of the only college papers with correspondents outside of the undergraduate ranks who make it a general practice to regularly supply alumni copy.

Recital Of Iturbi Is Triumph For College

In commenting on the concert given by Jose Iturbi, probably the most distinguished musician that ever appeared in a recital at Hamilton College, Professor Berrian R. Shute, director of the Musical Art Society, under whose auspices the concert was given, said: "The recital was a success in every respect. Not only was it a financial success, but it also marked the addition of many new members to the Musical Art Society.

"More and more Uticans," he said, "are beginning to realize that the Musical Art Society concerts are worthwhile and many have become members of the soceity. It was a triumph for Hamilton College to get Iturbi so early in his career."

FOUR CROWDS PLAN DANCES

Fraternity Functions Replace The Annual Junior Prom

Fraternities planning parties for the week-end following the examinations include Alpha Delta Phi, Psi Upsilon, Delta Upsilon and the Emerson Literary Society. These will replace the annual Junior Prom, discontinued this year.

The Alpha Delta Phi fraternity will hold formal dances on the evenings of Friday and Saturday, January 31 and February 1. Eddie Traut and his Blue Ribbon Entertainers from Amsterdam will supply the music on both occasions. Psi Upsilon Fraternity is giving a formal dance on Friday evening and an informal one on Saturday night. Billy Roux and his Merrymakers will play.

Delta Upsilon fraternity is planning a formal dance on Friday and a radio dance on Saturday evening. As yet, however, definite plans have not been formulated. The Emerson Literary Society is holding a formal dance on Friday evening and an informal dance on Saturday night. Music for dancing will be supplied by the Vagabonds, under the direction of Lloyd Jane, '31.

LANGUAGE CLUB HOLDS MEETING

Talk By Milton P. Kinsey Features Third German Club Gathering

An address by President Milton P. Kinsey, '30, of the German Club, featured the third regular meeting of the year at Emerson Hall Friday night. After the talk, the members of the club sang German songs.

The paper read by Kinsey dealt with the history of, and the places of interest in, two representative small German towns, Weimar and Jena. Both towns in the past have harbored a large number of prominent German writers, including Goethe and Schiller. The greater part of the discussion centered around these famous dramatists. About 15 members attended the meeting.

ART COURSES PLANNED FOR NEXT SEMESTER

Recovery of Edward Wales Root Promises Resumption of Lectures

Although nothing has been definitely decided as yet, there is every hope and expectation that the course in Art will be given during the second semester.

Edward Wales Root's operation was successful and he is now rapidly regaining his health. At the present time he is planning a short trip and unless he suffers a relapse while away, he expects to be able to conduct the Art course again this year.

SPRAGUE HONORED BY FROSH WITH OFFICE

Chosen Secretary-Treasurer By First Year Men

The freshman class has finally concluded its election of officers by choosing Wilbur Sprague, Jr., secretary-treasurer. Sprague, coming from Rochester, N. Y., was first recognized by the freshmen when he was selected chairman of the class for the underclassmen rushes at the beginning of the year. He is now out for freshman hockey.

Sprague is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. The other officers previously elected were Robert Fay, president, also from Rochester, and James T. Heyl, vice-president.

Hill Audience Is Enthusiastic In Praise Of Noted Pianist

CHAPEL WELL CROWDED

Musical Art Society Presents Most Noted Musician Of Day

Jose Iturbi, known as "Spain's greatest pianist," delighted an appreciative audience at last Tuesday's concert of the Musical Arts Society, January 7. Every available seat in the college Chapel was taken.

A well-balanced program ranged from Brahms' intricate "Variations Ona Theme of Paganini" to Debussys's "Imaginative Arabesques." Both of these were done with a clarity exceedingly difficult, due to the ponderous intricacies of the former and the mistiness of the latter.

Plays Mozart Effectively

Mr. Iturbi first played Mozart's "Sonata in A Major," with its simple and concise themes. The selection on the first part of the program which most pleased was Schubert's "Impromptu," so often ruined in the hands of lesser artists. The notable thing in Chopin's "Valse in B-Flat Major" was the artist's handling of the effective four-note base motif which continues through a large part of the selection.

The second half of the program consisted of the works of artists of the more modern school. The beautiful ending of Ravel's "Jeux d'Eau," which dies away in a very gradual decrescendo, was managed with con-

NOTICE!

With this issue, Hamilton Life adds to its staff three members of the alumni body who have signified their willingness to keep us informed of alumni activities in their communities. It is hoped that this number will be increased until representatives have been obtained in all of the principal New York State cities. Hamilton Life deeply appreciates the interest which these three correspondents listed above are taking and wishes to publicly express its gratitude.

At the same time, we again make the plea that all alumni subscribers co-operate to make Life a more interesting paper by writing in news of their activities. Many have already, as one writer expressed it, "thrown modesty to the winds" and complied with the request. It is an example which we hope others will follow.

THE SKELETON IS OUT OF THE CLOSET

The family skeleton, the question of a new fraternity pledging system, is with us again. This question has been discussed to such an extent during the past few years that we are almost as fed up with it as we are with the present system of pledging. The action of the Interfraternity Council in bringing up the question again is worthy of commendation only because it claims that this time some definite action will be taken. The undergraduates, through their agent the Interfraternity Council, agree that the present system is inadequate. It is time that a definite substitute for the present plan be agreed upon and adopted.

Inasmuch as the main cause for discontent under the present system is the haste in which pledging is, of necessity, carried on, any new plan should involve some sort of deferred pledging. We propose that pledging be deferred for one month after the opening of the fall semester. A longer period would throw too great a financial burden on the three delegations in each house, while a shorter space of time would hardly improve the present plan. During this time the freshmen would have an opportunity to look over the various crowds, and the fraternities would be enabled to choose the men they wished to pledge.

Certain rules would have to be made for the regulation of rushing during this month. Each freshman would be allowed to have so many dates with a fraternity, and no more. Of primary importance would be a rule to the effect that no fraternity could extend any bids or exact any promises from the new men, except in the case of legacies. In order to do away with the practice of taking freshmen into Utica, the entertaining would be limited by rule to the fraternity houses, and each night, for example, at 9 o'clock, the Chapel bell would be rung to signify that all freshmen should leave the different houses. This latter regulation would give both freshmen and fraternity men time to study, and would prevent rushing season from having its usual damaging effect on scholarship. Having the pledging deferred a month would allow each fraternity to make a comprehensive survey of the entire freshman class, and to entertain any particular man at least three or four times before pledging takes place.

Actual pledging would be done in a manner similar to the plan employed at Wesleyan. There the period of rushing is followed by several days' "silence," during which no fraternity entertains any freshman and fraternity members do absolutely no rushing.

This respite allows both the crowds and the freshman time for careful deliberation before they submit lists of their choices to an impartial committee. The freshmen list the fraternities from which they will accept bids in the order of their preference, and the fraternities submit the names of a group of men from which they will take a specified number, likewise indicating the order of their choice. The committee, which, in our case, could be composed of members of the faculty, or of students, or of a combination of the two, selects the "pledges" of the different crowds in accordance with the expressed wishes of both parties. The fraternities and the freshmen are then notified by the committee, and all actual pledging is done at the same time.

Hamilton is fortunate in having a place in which the freshmen may eat during the period of rushing. One of the chief difficulties at Wesleyan is the lack of a Commons, but the advantages of deferred pledging are considered to compensate for the short period of inconvenience. We have every facility for putting such a plan into operation; all that is lacking is the plan itself.

A system of deferred pledging as outlined above would also do away with the confusion during the first few weeks of the fall semester in the matter of rooming arrangements. Every freshman would be assigned to a room in the dormitories, and would live in it until pledged. Shortly after pledging had been completed there would be a general moving day for freshmen and sophomores, during which all room changes would be made with a minimum of confusion. Sophomores would have retained their rooms in the fraternity houses, and would then exchange rooms with the incoming pledges. The bursar would be furnished with a list of all changes, and with his cooperation, there would be little, if any, of the present difficulty.

Aside from the fact that the new plan would facilitate rooming arrangements there would be the adidtional benefit that the freshman class would live together for a month. During this month the first year men would knit themselves into a compact group having common interests. We would have the development of college spirit in freshmen before the development of fraternity spirit. Granted that fraternity spirit is one of the best things in life at college, we should not lose sight of the fact that college spirit should have precedence.

Enforcement of the plan does not constitute a serious problem. There would have to be a 'gentleman's agreement' among the fraternities, resting on fraternity honor. In a college notable for its success with the honor system in examinations, there should be little difficulty in enforcing such an agreement. If any penalty for breach of the agreement is found to be necessary, the policy followed at the University of Pennsylvania might be adopted. There a fraternity is punished by dismissal from the interfraternity council and by public announcement of its state in the university newspaper.

In closing, we might reconsider the arguments against the present system but feel that they are worn with abuse and known to everyone. We admit one fault with a system of deferred pledging, that of its tendency to make a strong fraternity stronger; we claim, however, that the dual advantage derived by the fraternity and the freshman more than compensates for this defect, which, in itself, is but another example of the survival of the fittest.

SOPHS BEGIN PLAY PRACTICE

Class Of 1932 Will Present "In The Zone" By O'Neil

Getting the jump on its rivals, the Sophomore class is hard at work upon the production of the play to be presented as its contender for the Charlatan Cup, which was recently offered to the winner of the inter-class play contest.

"In the Zone," a one-act play by Eugene O'Neil, portraying life on an ammunition ship during the war, has been chosen by the committee for presentation. The Sophomore Dramatic Committee, of which John J. Walsh is chairman, includes Waterman Baldwin, George Brown, Arthur Stein and Judson Humeston.

As a result of the tryouts, held in the Hall of Commons on Friday evening, under the direction of Professor Rudd, the following tentative cast has been announced:

Smitty, Morey Eames; Davis, George Brown; Swanson, Maynard Jones; Scotty, Theodore Harwood; Ivan, William Woodcock; Jack, Waterman Baldwin; Cocky, William Sloane; Driscoll, Clifford Lewis; Paul, Allan Henderson. Douglas Batten and John Mangan have been elected as stage managers.

The seniors have selected "The Lost Silk Hat," by Lord Dunsany. Tryouts will be held Wednesday in the Little Theater.

AHEPA LAUDS DEAN ALFANGE

Prominent Alumnus Honored By Official Greek Publication

Twice Supreme President of the Order of Ahepa, Dean Alfange, '22, has merited a position in "Who's Who in the Ahepa," an illustrated monthly magazine and official organ of the American Hellenic Educational Progressive Association. Under his leadership, the Order of Ahepa has made phenomenal progress and "The Ahepa" states that his policies and the result of his benevolent work will be felt in years to come.

Mr. Alfange was graduated from the Rome Free Academy and entered Hamilton College, where he studied for his A. B. After receiving his degree, he entered the Columbia University Law School, from which he was graduated with the degree of LL. B. During his stay at Columbia, he ably served as associate editor of the "Columbia Law Review." After his graduation from Columbia, he entered the practice of law in New York City and became a member of the well-known law firm, Lee, Alfange and Donohue, in which firm he is still a member. During his years of practice he was appointed and served as Deputy Attorney General for the State of New York, for the purpose of prosecuting election frauds. Not very long ago, he was elected first vice-president, director and counsel of the Madison State Bank, a well-known financial institution in the City of New York.

During the World War, he volunteered and served in the United States Army. He was appointed and served as a four-minute man for the United States Government during the war.

George Ehret, a member of the freshman class, has abandoned his plans for study at Hamilton. He did not return after the holidays and is at present touring the West. He intends to enter Yale University next Fall.

summate artistry. The exotic "Triana" of Albeniz met with favor.

Gives Three Encores

At the close of the program, no one would leave the Chapel. After insistent applause, Mr. Iturbi played Liszt's "Campanilla," and two waltzes by Chopin and Brahms.

After a short reception at the home of Prof. Paul A. Fancher, Mr. Iturbi left for a western engagement. He charmed all with his genial personality. At the age of 34, he has attained to a place which equals that held by Paderewski, Rachmaninoff, or any other pianist of recent years.

The Musical Arts Society is to be congratulated on bringing to Hamilton one of the world's greatest artists. It is probable that his equal will never appear here.

Alexander Hamilton Is Object Of Recent Commemorative Observances In His Honor

With the recent observation of his birthday arranged by the Sons of the American Revolution and the plans for the restoration of his old home in New York, the name of Alexander Hamilton has again been the object of considerable public attention.

On Friday afternoon, January 10, wreaths were laid on Hamilton's grave by the New York State Daughters of the American Revolution, by the Empire State Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, by Columbia University, in honor of her most distinguished son and trustee, by the National Republican Club, and by Hamilton College. Hamilton's floral tribute was presented by Lloyd Paul Stryker, '06, son of ex-President Stryker, who died on December 6.

Home To Be Preserved

Announcement is also made that Hamilton Grange, the New York City home of Alexander Hamilton in the latter part of his life, is to be restored to its original form and converted into a museum of Hamilton and his time by the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, according to a recent announcement made in connection with the current campaign for funds. Plans call for the installation of various articles of furniture, paintings, and other objects formerly in the possession of Hamilton and his family, together with copies of his works on government and economics.

Built In 1802

Built by Hamilton in 1802, on the Hamilton Farm on Washington Heights, the Grange has an unusually interesting history. It was here that Hamilton found a refuge from the cares of law and politics. And it was here that he indulged in his hobby of horticulture, only to leave it forever on the morning of his fatal duel with Aaron Burr.

Since his death, this historic house has been in the possession of a succession of owners. In 1887, it was purchased by St. Luke's Church and moved to its present location. After serving as a parish house for over 35 years, it was threatened with demolition, until purchased by the Society in 1924.

CARTOONS AND RADIO PROMOTE OLD GOLDS

John Held, Jr., and Mary Nolan Make Advertising Welcome

The manufacturers of Old Gold Cigarettes will combine business with pleasure in a series of advertisements containing portraits by John Held, Jr., to be printed during the coming season in Hamilton Life.

The melodramatic villians and touch-me-not maidens of long ago have been turned to good account to promote the cigarette which has for its slogan "not a cough in a carload."

This same combination of business with pleasure can be found in the weekly Tuesday evening broadcasts over the Columbia network. Student audiences have been kept definitely in mind in the planning of a program for January 14, from 9 to 10, which includes as guest star Mary Nolan, the leading personage of "The Shanghai Lady," current film release. Other features include the Rythm Boys and the King of Jazz with his incomparable orchestra. Numbers include "Lady Luck," "Singin' in the Bathtub" and "Wouldn't It Be Wonderful."

BIXLER WRITES ON JOURNALISM

Hill Alumnus Visions Decline Of Reporter In Recent Article

Paul H. Bixler, '22, is the author of an article in the January number of the "North American Review," entitled "The Reporter's Last Stand." The article deals with publicity organizations, which are now offering the press an increasing proportion of the day's news. Indeed, crime remains the only important field in which independent reporting survives.

As an illustration of the ramifications of publicity bureaus, Mr. Bixler cites "The Independent Press" of Bloomfield, N. J., which, about a year ago, published verbatim "a section made up of publicity items which had been received during the week," with the name of the source appended to each story. The results were amusing, if not embarrassing.

Originating in the theater, the "public relations counsel" now handles the publicity of almost every enterprise. "Reporters are no lazier than ordinary men," says Mr. Bixler, "but when they are seldom called on to use their intelligence" in the writing of original news stories, "it is difficult to keep on their mettle or even to retain their self-respect." It is in the field of crime, especially police news, that the honest reporter is making his last stand. Many police reporters "are cubs, young fellows who have not yet lost their zest in news getting."

Mr. Bixler is a member of the department of English in Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio.

Article Published By Journal Of American Med. Association

An article by J. S. Plant, M. D., '12, entitled "Some Practical Aspects of the Sexual Adjustments of Children" was published in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association. It was also read before the Section on Nervous and Mental Diseases at the Eightieth Annual Session of the American Medical Association held at Portland, Oregon, last July.

In his article, Dr. Plant advocates the handling of sex problems in children with common sense, and stresses the extreme importance of psychology in effecting a cure.

Dr. Plant is eminently gifted to write on this subject since he has a wealth of experience gained through his connection with the Juvenile Court in Newark, N. J., as medical advisor, and as director of the Essex County Juvenile Clinic in the same city. Previously he spent two years studying under Dr. Witmer, the University of Pennsylvania specialist on abnormal children.

President Day, Union, Advocates New League

"Hamilton, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Williams, Amherst, Wesleyan and Union" were suggested as the nucleus of a small college league recently by Dr. Frank Parker Day of Union College, in an address before the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Dr. Day believes that these six colleges are "all colleges of high academic standing and of about the same athletic strength" and that their formation into a league would promote the cause of "truly amateur athletics."

"The league would function in all sports" Dr. Day declared, "and would be coached either by athletic directors or assistants who would be regular members of the faculty or by an old graduate who would devote part of his time to coaching some team." Dr. Day further indicated a willingness to negotiate with such colleges to this end.

His suggestion of such a league was one of five remedies proposed by Dr. Day for the abolition of a growing professionalism. His other reforms provided for the discontinuance of gate receipts, professional coaching, scouting, side-line advice and subsidization of players.

The "Concordiensis," Union's weekly newspaper, supports Dr. Day and particularly that part of his speech which advocates the formation of definite small-college league.

HILL QUINTET SUCCUMBS TO ALFRED ATTACK

Buff and Blue Drops Contest In Second Period After 14-14 Tie At Half

McGRAW SCORES 14 POINTS

Crowley Leads Hill Scorers With Three Field Goals And Foul

After battling the strong Alfred quintet on even terms throughout the first half, the Buff and Blue basketball team bowed before the furious attack of the visitors in the last period, 34-22, on the home court Thursday night. It was Hamilton's second game, and first defeat of the season.

Hamilton, handicapped by the absence of Captain Carpenter at one of the guard positions, was unable to check the visitors' scoring combinations, using Hiler and Rienzo in unsuccessful efforts to hold down McGraw. Dutcher, playing in the place of Carpenter, gave an outstanding exhibition at guard.

Hill Opens Scoring

Crowley, at forward, started the scoring for the home team with a very difficult field goal from the center of the court, and provided most of the spectacular play in the contest, registering several times after dribbles through the visitors' whole defense. He was the high scorer of the Buff and Blue team. Morris, his diminutive running mate, also provided plenty of action and scored two field goals.

The home team, first to score, was easily overtaken by Alfred. Later, however, Hamilton overcame a six-point lead by a brilliant rally in the final minutes of the first half to tie the winners at 14-14. Alfred gained the lead early in the second period on a field goal by Latronica and was never again headed.

Steele, huge negro center, and McGraw, right forward, on the visiting team, paved the way for the downfall of the Buff and Blue with consistently successful plays from the tip-off, the later scoring six times by this method.

The Hamilton team showed up rather poorly in its passwork and at foul-shooting, and it was in these two departments that the visitors particularly excelled. The summary:

HILL DROPS CLOSE CONTEST TO AGGIES

Frost and Gunness netted two easy stops from the center zone.

The second period was slow, with neither team able to gain the advantage. Redmond, back in the net, made several brilliant stops as the New Englanders' forward line eluded the Hamilton defense.

Davis scored the winning tally from scrimmage after four minutes of the last period, and Hamilton repeated attempts to tie the score proved ineffectual.

The game was poorly played on both sides, and the Hill team's lack of practice was clearly shown by its failure to play up to the standard set in the opening game of the season against Michigan.

The summary:

Former Hamilton Coach Signs Contract To Play With Buffalo Club In Ball League

Utica Catcher Reports For Training March 1 In Florida

Donald F. McBride, a former Hamilton coach, has signed a contract with the Buffalo Club in the International League and will report to the spring training camp of the Bisons at Fort Laurendale, Fla., on March 1.

McBride is a native of Utica and is well known in this vicinity for his athletic ability. As captain and catcher for the Amsterdam Club in the Lower Mohawk Valley League last summer he attracted the attention of scouts who made him an offer after watching him play.

A graduate of Colgate University, McBride is considered to be one of the cleverest athletes ever turned out by the Hamilton institution. While there he gained letters in football, baseball and basketball. For the past six years he has accumulated considerable experience as coach at Colgate, St. Lawrence and Hamilton.

Although he coached several teams here, he achieved his best results in baseball, turning out several championship teams. This marks his first appearance in Class AA ball, although he has played with Pittsfield in the Eastern League and in the Mississippi League.

KEEN CONTESTS FOR QUINTET

Court Five To Meet Clarkson, Rochester And St. Lawrence

The Hamilton College basketball five will oppose Clarkson Tech in the first of its two scheduled contests with that team in Soper Gymnasium on Friday evening. The return engagement will be played at Potsdam on Saturday, February 8.

Clarkson did not boast of a strong team at the opening of the present season, but it showed decided improvement in its clashes with the powerful Buffalo quintet Saturday night. After suffering a 51-15 trouncing at the hands of Alfred, the Engineers came back strong against the Buffalo team, which had four victories to its credit, and lost out only by a 34-22 score. Clarkson should be going at top speed when it comes to Clinton on Friday.

Following the game this week, the Buff and Blue men will enjoy a two weeks' rest during mid-semester examinations. Rochester will be opposed here on the Hill on Feb. 4, in the first encounter following the examination period.

Rochester is represented by a veteran team this year and will probably provide Hamilton with its hardest home game of the year. Since its 14-point defeat early in the season by the speedy Alfred team, the Rochester five has improved rapidly and one of its recent victories was the University of Cornell.

The night before the return game with Clarkson at Potsdam, the Buff and Blue will play a return game with St. Lawrence at Canton. St. Lawrence has been going at a fast pace lately and has gained victories over Buffalo and Alfred in its last two games. The Saints always provide strong opposition on their home floor and will have the added incentive of avenging their 23-21 defeat pinned on them before the vacation.

"Continentals" New Name For Hill Teams

On the 126th anniversary of the death of Alexander Hamilton last Saturday, it was decided by the Press Board that athletic teams of the college which now bears his name should henceforth be known as "The Continentals."

Buff and Blue, the colors of the uniform which Alexander Hamilton wore as aide-de-camp in Washington's Continental Army, were long ago adopted as Hill insignia, but the need for a new and more distinctive cognomen has recently been felt. It is believed that "The Continentals" will carry an appropriate suggestion of an era and of heroes intimately connected with the birth of the college and of our nation.

Lest there be any confusion in terminology, the Press Board hastens to add that the new nickname has nothing to do with debased paper money. However, a chain of victories wrought by a modern offensive machine clothed in buff and blue, might do much to redeem once and for all "Not worth a Continental."

CORNELL NEXT HOCKEY RIVAL

Middlebury and St. Lawrence Listed For Post-Exam. Games

A star Cornell sextet promises to provide the Hamilton skaters with plenty of opposition this coming Saturday in the last game before exams. Middlebury and St. Lawrence teams, which gave Hamilton trouble last year, follow, with appearances in the Sage Building on February 1 and 8, respectively.

Three years ago, when the teams last met, Hamilton handed Cornell a 2-1 defeat. This year, because of poor weather conditions, Cornell was forced to cancel its first game last week with Union, and consequently, this will be its first encounter. At the same time, it will be one of Hamilton's stiffest games and one of the outstanding features of the season.

Middlebury has always been a strong opponent and has defeated Hamilton last year and three years ago, while the intervening year the game was cancelled because of a lack of ice. So far this season they have defeated Norfolk, 2-0, with a team that was up to the usual Middlebury standard.

St. Lawrence will be the second opponent in the new term, coming to Hamilton again with a fast team. Last year, mainly through the efforts of its star skater, Clark, the Canton sextet defeated the Buff and Blue 5-2, although Hamilton, in previous years, scored decisive 8-0 and 13-1 victories.

H

HILL ALUMNI TO PLAY HERE

Many Hamilton Students Will Attend Annual Clash In Clinton

Six Hamilton alumni, all members of the Jamaica Hockey Club, will engage the Clinton hockey team Saturday afternoon on the village rink at 2:30.

The Jamaica team will be captained by Watson Thompson, '22, one of the best players that has ever represented the Buff and Blue. His position is center.

The remaining line-up includes: Charles W. MacLean, '27, and L. Danforth Bates, '24, defense men; A. Willis Thompson, ex-'29, and Nathaniel Mann, II, '27, wings; and Dwight Scovel, '28, goaltender. Other Hamilton men are expected to serve as spares.

The group played the Clinton team last year when the Jamaica players won, 3-2, in the first overtime period. The contest was keen throughout, with Watson Thompson and Bates as the outstanding stars.

A. Burton Prettyman, ex-'31, and Paul M. Schneider, ex-'29, are included on the Clinton team. It is expected that a large number of students will attend the game, which, in part, replaces the annual custom of an alumni-varsity game on College Hill.

The contest was arranged through Charles W. MacLean, '27, and Edward W. Stanley, '27, managers of the Jamaica and Clinton teams, respectively.

ELECTION AT EASTER

Carberry, Crowley and Meagher Will Edit Two Issues Apiece

The first lap of competition for editorship of Life during the coming year has ended with three out of six men remaining in the race. The second heat will consist of competitive issues put out by the contestants, the first to appear at the beginning of the new semester.

Kenneth S. Carberry, Francis J. Crowley and Jefferson F. Meagher are the three men who remain in the competition. Each of these has submitted at least two editorials and two feature stories for publication during the past semester, in addition to the regular work of reporting.

Unlimited Cuts Proposed

An editorial by Mr. Carberry on the decadence of the classics in the educational program appeared in the issue of October 16 and his second contribution is presented on the editorial page of this issue. A feature story on the ancient custom of auctioning off members of the senior class appeared in the issue of October 1.

Mr. Crowley has written editorials appearing in the issues of November 6 and 20, respectively. The first dealt with unlimited cuts for honor students and the second with faculty co-operation during the week of the Union game. Feature stories on the life of Elihu Root and the history of Junior Prom were also submitted by Mr. Crowley, and were published in the issues of October 9 and January 8.

The issues of October 9 and 23 bear editorials by Mr. Meagher concerning undergraduate interest in political affairs and the efficacy of the traditional classical course. Feature stories by him on Alexander Woollcott, '09, in his radio role of "Town Crier," and Coburn Goodwin, '27, in Jane Cowl's new comedy, "Jenny" appear in the issues of October 16 and November 20.

The number of men remaining after the first half of the competition is the same as last year. The three survivors will each bring out two competitive issues of Life before the Easter recess, at which time the results of the competition will be made known.

Following drawings Monday it was decided that Carberry would put out competitive isssues on February 12 and March 5; Crowley on February 19 and March 12, and Meagher on February 26 and March 19.
